MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

I INTRODUCTION

Equality California and the Gay Straight Alliance Network (“GSA Network”) (collectively, “Proposed Intervenors”) respectfully request that this Court permit them to intervene as party defendants in this lawsuit pursuant to Rule 24(a) and, in the alternative, Rule 24(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. In this litigation, filed on November 27, 2007, it is Proposed Intervenors’ understanding that Plaintiffs seek to enjoin the defendant officials of the State of California from implementing the sexual orientation and gender provisions of California’s hate crime statute, codified at California Penal Code section 422.55 et seq, and the sexual orientation and gender provisions of California Senate Bill 777 (“SB 777”), also known as the Student Civil Rights Act, which was signed into law on October 12, 2007, and which will go into effect on January 1, 2008.¹ SB 777 clarifies and reinforces existing protections currently in the California Education Code, including California’s prohibition of discrimination and harassment based on sexual orientation and gender.

A ruling invalidating the challenged provisions of the hate crime statute and of SB 777 would deprive members of Equality California and the GSA Network of important legal protections and would significantly impede Equality California and the GSA Network’s efforts to protect their members and others from invidious discrimination and hate violence on the basis of sexual orientation and gender. As such, Equality California and the GSA Network have direct and substantial interests in the outcome of this litigation and should be permitted to intervene in the action.

II FACTUAL BACKGROUND

A. The Relief Sought By Plaintiffs.

Plaintiffs California Education Committee, LLC and Priscilla Schreiber have brought suit against officials of the State of California, challenging the sexual orientation and gender provisions of California's hate crime statute and the sexual orientation and gender provisions of SB 777 on various federal and state constitutional grounds. The Complaint's Prayer for Relief seeks (1) preliminary and permanent injunctions enjoining the State of California and its officials from enforcing California Education Code § 220 as amended by SB 777; California Education Code § 210.7 as added by Senate Bill 777; California Education Code § 212.6 as added by SB 777; California Education Code § 51500 as amended by SB 777; California Penal Code §§ 422.6(a), 422.55 (a)(2) and (6), 422.55(b) and 422.56(c);² and the removal of California Education Code § 212; (2) a declaratory judgment that the same California Education Code and Penal Code provisions violate the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution; (3) a declaratory judgment that that the same California Education Code and Penal Code provisions violate the protections of privacy and safety in the California Constitution, Article 1, Section 1; and (4) costs and attorneys' fees. See Complaint at 10-11.

B. The Interests Of Proposed Intervenors.

Equality California is California's leading lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender ("LGBT") civil rights organization, with tens of thousands of members throughout the state including many youth members who will directly benefit from SB 777. (Declaration of Geoffrey Kors, filed concurrently herewith, ("Kors Decl.") at ¶¶ 2 & 3.) Equality California's purposes include combating discrimination, harassment, and hate violence on the basis of sexual orientation and gender identity and protecting the needs and interests of LGBT people in the State of California, including LGBT students, teachers and others in publicly-funded California schools. (Id. ¶ 2.) Equality California was the official sponsor of SB 777 and the lead organization lobbying for the bill's passage. (Id. ¶ 5.) Equality California was also an official co-sponsor of, and the leading organization lobbying for, the measure that ² Plaintiffs' Complaint states that Plaintiffs are challenging Penal Code sections 420.6, 420.55 and 420.56. See, e.g., Complaint at ¶ 29. As such code sections do not exist, proposed Defendant-Intervenors assume Plaintiffs meant to reference Penal Code sections 422.6, 422.55 and 422.56.

1 became California Assembly Bill 537, the California Student Safety and Violence Prevention 2 Act of 2000 ("AB 537"), which banned discrimination in public schools on the same bases
3 covered in the prohibition against hate crimes in California Penal Code Section 422.55, 4 including actual or perceived sexual orientation and actual or perceived gender (including 5 gender identity). (Id. ¶ 6; Cal. Penal. Code §§ 422.55, 422.56.) Since the passage of AB 537, 6 Equality California and its members have assumed a continuing role in educating students, 7 parents, teachers, and administrators throughout California about the requirements of AB 537 8 to protect students, including Equality California members, from discrimination based on 9 sexual orientation and gender identity. (Kors Decl. ¶¶ 4, 10-12.)

10 The GSA Network is a youth-driven public interest organization made up of 11 lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and heterosexual students and supportive adults who are 12 dedicated to eliminating harassment, discrimination, and intolerance in California schools.
13 (Declaration of Carolyn Laub, filed concurrently herewith, ("Laub Decl.") at ¶ 2.) The GSA 14 Network's purposes include combating discrimination on the bases of sexual orientation and 15 gender identity in schools by empowering lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and heterosexual 16 student members to form and maintain local, school-based, student-run clubs, called "gay-17 straight alliances" or "GSAs," in high schools throughout California. (Id. ¶¶ 3 & 4.) At 18 present, 654 GSAs in California are registered with GSA Network. The GSA Network has 19 approximately 10,000 student members and 1,000 adult supporting members, including 20 teachers, school administrators, and school counselors. (Id. ¶¶ 2 & 6.) The GSA Network 21 helps its members work with school administrators and legislators to enact and implement 22 policies that prevent harassment, discrimination, and violence against LGBT youth. (Id. ¶ 7.) 23 Since 1998, the GSA Network has worked with students throughout California to organize and 24 advocate for the passage of statewide legislation and had a significant role in the passage of 25 AB 537 and SB 777. (Id. ¶¶ 2, 7 & 9.)

26 The membership of both Equality California and the GSA Network include 27 LGBT students whom the sexual orientation and gender identity provisions of SB 777 and the 28 hate crime statutes were designed to protect. (Kors Decl. 3; Laub Decl. 4) Equality

California's members also include parents of LGBT students who have interests in their children receiving an education free from discriminatory bias and in their children being protected against hate crimes based on sexual orientation and gender identity. (Kors Decl. 3, 15.) In addition, Equality California's members include LGBT parents who have children who are students in publicly-funded California schools who have an interest in their children receiving an education free from discriminatory bias based on sexual orientation and gender, as well as their children being protected against hate crimes based on their association with their LGBT parents. (Kors Decl. 3, 15.) GSA Network's members also include approximately 1,000 adult supporters, including teachers, school administrators, and school counselors who have an interest in eliminating the hostile environment that exists for many students because of their sexual orientation or gender identity and of protecting students against hate crimes based on their sexual orientation or gender identity. (Laub Decl. 2, 18.) Many adult members of GSA Network, including teachers, administrators, and counselors have almost 7 years of experience applying AB 537 and California's definition of gender in Section 422.56 of the California Penal Code in the state's schools. (Laub Decl. 2, 18.)

C. The Challenged Statutes.

1. Challenged hate crime provisions.

Plaintiffs seek to invalidate provisions of the California hate crime statute that prohibit willful violence and threats of violence based on sexual orientation and gender, which includes gender identity. Specifically, Plaintiffs challenge Penal Code³ section 422.55(a)(2) & (6) (listing "gender" and "sexual orientation," respectively, as protected categories); Penal Code section 422.55(b) ("Hate crime" includes, but is not limited to, a violation of Section 422.6"); Penal Code section 422.56(c) (defining "gender"); and Penal Code section 422.6(a), which prohibits acts or threats of violence that "willfully injure, intimidate, interfere with, oppress, or threaten any other person in the free exercise or enjoyment of any right or privilege secured to him or her by the Constitution or laws of this state or by the Constitution or laws of

1 the United States in whole or in part because of one or more of the actual or perceived 2 characteristics of the victim listed in subdivision (a) of Section 422.55.”

3 The California hate crime statute has prohibited violence and threats of violence 4 based on sexual orientation since 1988, and has prohibited violence and threats of violence 5 based on “gender” since 1992. 1987 Cal. Stat., ch. 1277, § 4 (current version at Cal. Penal 6 Code § 422.6 (West 2007); S.B. 98, Cal. Stat. 1991, ch. 607, § 5; A.B. 1009, 1991 Cal. Stat., 7 ch. 1184, § 1.5,. In 1995, the California Supreme Court provided authoritative construction of 8 many of the statute’s terms in a case involving violence and threats of violence based on 9 sexual orientation. See In re M.S., 10 Cal.4th 698, 896 P.2d 1365 (1995).

10 The Penal Code defines “sexual orientation” to mean “heterosexuality, 11 homosexuality, or bisexuality.” Cal. Penal Code § 422.56 (h) (West 2007). The Legislature 12 added this specific definition to the Penal Code effective 2005. S.B. 1234, 2004 Cal. Stat., ch.
13 700, § 6. This definition is identical to the definition of sexual orientation established in the 14 former Ralph Civil Rights Act, in former Civil Code section 51.7(b), which went into effect in 15 1985.⁴ 1984 Cal. Stat., ch. 1437, § 1. It is also identical to the definition of sexual orientation 16 in the Fair Employment and Housing Act, Government Code section 12926(q), which has 17 been in effect since 1999. 1999 Cal. Stat., ch. 592, § 3.7.

18 The Penal Code also defines the term “gender,” providing that:

19 “Gender” means sex, and includes a person’s gender identity and gender related 20 appearance and behavior whether or not stereotypically associated with the 21 person’s assigned sex at birth.

22 Cal. Penal Code § 422.56(c). This wording has been in effect since 2005. A similar definition 23 of “gender” had previously been in effect since 1999.⁵ The current definition of gender in 24 ⁴ In 2005, the definition was moved to another section of the Unruh Civil Rights Act, Civil 25 Code section 51 in 2005. 2005 Cal. Stat., ch. 420, § 5.

26 ⁵ The hate crime’s statute’s definition of “gender” in effect from 1999 through 2004 provided 27 that: “[G]ender” means the victim’s actual sex or the defendant’s perception of the victim’s 28 sex, and includes the defendant’s perception of the victim’s identity, appearance, or behavior, whether or not that identity, appearance, or behavior is different from that traditionally

1 Penal Code § 422.56(c) is also incorporated by reference in the Fair Employment and Housing 2 Act, Government Code section 12926(p); Health & Safety Code section 1365.5(e); and 3 Government Code section 11135(e).⁶

 7 § 422.76 (West 2004), current version at Cal. Penal Code § 422.56 (c) (West 2007)).

 9 ⁶ A number of other states have adopted definitions of "gender" or "gender identity" 10 similar to the statutory definitions in place in California. See, e.g., Hawaii Revised Statutes §§ 11 489-2, 489-3, 515-3, H.R.S. 846-51 (prohibiting discrimination in real property transactions 12 and public accommodations based on "a person's actual or perceived gender, as well as a 13 person's gender identity, gender-related self-image, gender-related appearance, or gender-14 related expression, regardless of whether that gender-related expression is different from that 15 traditionally associated with the person's sex at birth"); Rhode Island Gen. Laws §§ 28-5-6 16 (10), 34-37-3 (17)), 34-37-4 (prohibiting discrimination in employment and housing based on 17 "Gender identity or expression" [which] includes a person's actual or perceived gender, as well

27 ⁷ Proposed Intervenor's discussion of SB 777 in this Memorandum focuses only on 28 those provisions of SB 777 expressly challenged by Plaintiffs. Proposed Intervenor's do not here provide a comprehensive account of all of the statutory amendments made by SB 777.

As explained in more detail below, the Education Code has for years incorporated by reference the unlawful grounds for discrimination enumerated in the Penal Code without uniformly repeating all of those grounds in the Education Code provisions themselves. In addition, various Education Code provisions contained different lists of prohibited grounds for discrimination or used different terms for such prohibited grounds. The overarching purpose of SB 777, as described by the Senate Judiciary Committee Analysis, was “to amend [the Education Code] so that the list of prohibited discrimination is consistent throughout the Education Code, and with the cross referenced sections of the Penal Code.” Senate Judiciary Com. Analysis of Senate Bill No. 777 (2007-2008 Reg. Sess., pp. 1-2 (April 18, 2007)).

a. Education Code sections 210.7, 212.6 and 220 as amended by SB 777.

Plaintiffs are seeking to invalidate protections against discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender in Education Code section 220, which prohibits discrimination “in any program or activity conducted by an educational institution that receives, or benefits from, state financial assistance or enrolls pupils who receive state student financial aid.” Cal. Ed. Code § 220. Plaintiffs also challenge the definitions of sexual orientation and gender in Education Code section 210.7 and SB 777’s removal of Education Code section 212.6, which previously defined the term “sex.”

Section 220 has prohibited discrimination in publicly funded educational programs and activities based on sexual orientation and gender identity since 2000 as a result of a 1999 amendment of Section 220 to prohibit discrimination on “any basis that is contained in the prohibition of hate crimes set forth in subdivision (a) of Section 422.6 of the Penal Code,” as well as on the bases previously enumerated in Section 220.⁸ A.B. 537, 1999-2000 Reg. Sess.

For example, in addition to the provisions described below, SB 777 made a number of other changes to various Education Code provisions, including, inter alia, replacing references to “handicapped” individuals in the Education Code with references to persons “with disabilities” and defining certain statutory terms, such as “disability” and “nationality.”

⁸ Education Code sections 200 and 220 originally prohibited discrimination based on sex. 1982 Cal. Stat., ch. 1117, § 1, pp. 4037-4038 (current version at Cal. Ed. Code § 200 (West 2007)). In 1998, the Legislature amended these sections to prohibit discrimination

(Cal. 1999), §§ 2-3. The effect of the 1999 amendment was to expand the list of protected characteristics in Education Code section 220 to include sexual orientation and gender (including perceptions of gender identity), which already were among the categories protected by the hate crime statute. See Section C.1., supra.

SB 777 revised Education Code section 220 to include sexual orientation and gender (including gender identity) in the list of characteristics expressly enumerated in the statute, rather than simply incorporating them by reference to Penal Code section 422.6.⁹

SB 777 also added to the Education Code definitions of the terms “sexual orientation” and “gender” that are identical to the Penal Code definitions that the Education Code previously incorporated by reference. Specifically, SB 777 enacted Education Code section 212.6, which, like Penal Code section 422.56(h), states: “‘Sexual orientation’ means heterosexuality, homosexuality, or bisexuality.” S.B. 777, 2007-2008 Reg. Sess. (Cal. 2007), § 9. In addition, SB 777 enacted Education Code section 210.7, which, like Penal Code section 422.56(h), states: “‘Gender’ means sex, and includes a person’s gender identity and gender related appearance and behavior whether or not stereotypically associated with the person’s assigned sex at birth.” S.B. 777, 2007-2008 Reg. Sess. (Cal. 2007), § 4. The definition of “gender” in Education Code section 210.7 (and in the Penal Code provision cross-referenced in the Education Code), incorporates “sex” within the meaning of “gender” by stating, in part, that “[g]ender’ means sex.” In conjunction with the addition of Education Code section 210.7, SB 777 eliminated Education Code section 212’s definition of the term “sex” as “the biological condition or quality of being a male or female human being.”

b. Education Code Section 51500 as amended by SB 777.

based on “ethnic group identification, race, national origin, religion, color, or mental or physical disability,” as well A.B. 499, 1997-1998 Reg. Sess. (Cal. 1998), §§ 7, 16.

SB 777 amended Education Code section 51500 to change the sentence “No teacher shall give instruction nor shall a school district sponsor any activity which reflects adversely upon persons because of their race, sex, color, creed, handicap, national origin, or ancestry” to the following: “No teacher shall give instruction nor shall a school district sponsor any activity that promotes a discriminatory bias because of a characteristic listed in Section 220.” SB 777, 2007-2008 Reg. Sess. (Cal. 2007), § 29 (amending Cal. Ed. Code § 51500). This alteration made two changes in the existing statutory language. First, SB 777 replaced “reflects adversely upon” with “promotes a discriminatory bias.” Second, SB 777 revised the list of prohibited bases of discrimination in section 51500 to refer instead to the protected characteristics in section 220, as amended by SB 777. The latter change had the effect of adding “sexual orientation” and “gender” to the list of prohibited bases of discrimination addressed by section 51500, although that section previously covered “sex” and Section 220 already prohibited discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender (including gender identity) in publicly funded educational programs and activities.¹⁰

D. Position Of Other Parties

Counsel for Defendants in the Office of the Attorney General has informed counsel for Proposed Intervenor that Defendants do not oppose intervention by Equality California and GSA Network as party defendants. As of the filing of this Motion, Proposed Intervenor do not know whether Plaintiffs plan to oppose the Motion.

III ARGUMENT

For the reasons set forth below, Equality California, the GSA Network, and their members have significant interests at stake in this case that could be impaired by the outcome and must be protected. In addition, Equality California, the GSA Network, and their members have no other means to protect their interests, and no existing party adequately represents their ¹⁰ In addition, SB 777’s replacement of Section 51500’s existing list of protected characteristics with an incorporation of the characteristics protected by Section 220 resulted in replacement of the terms “handicap” and “creed” with references to “disability” and “religion,” respectively.

1 interests. Accordingly, Equality California and the GSA Network should be permitted to 2 intervene under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure [hereinafter FRCP] Rule 24(a).

3 In the alternative, Equality California and the GSA Network also meet the requirements 4 for permissive intervention under FRCP 24(b), and the factors considered by courts in 5 determining whether to permit permissive intervention militate strongly in favor of granting 6 intervention in this case.

7 The Plaintiffs in this case seek to invalidate core statutory protections for lesbian, gay, 8 bisexual, and transgender people in the State of California – including protections that have 9 been in place for years and that play an essential role in ensuring that public education in 10 California is available to all youth on equal terms regardless of sexual orientation or gender 11 identity. The Proposed Intervenors represent the interests of students, parents, and other 12 LGBT persons who will be most directly affected by the outcome of this case and would bear 13 the brunt of invalidation of any of the challenged measures.

14 A. Equality California And The GSA Network Are Entitled To Intervene As 15 Of Right Under FRCP 24(a).

16 Intervention as of right is governed by FRCP 24(a), which provides in relevant part:

17 On timely motion, the court must permit anyone to intervene who: 18 (2) claims an interest relating to the property or transaction that is the 19 subject of the action, and is so situated that disposing of the action may as a 20 practical matter impair or impede the movant's ability to protect its interest, unless existing parties adequately represent that interest.

21 The Ninth Circuit applies a four-part test to evaluate claims for intervention under this rule:

22 (1) the motion must be timely; (2) the applicant must claim a “significantly 23 protectable” interest relating to the property or transaction that is the subject of 24 the action; (3) the applicant must be so situated that the disposition of the action may as a practical matter, impair or impede its ability to protect that interest; 25 and (4) the existing parties may not adequately represent the applicant's interest.

26 Forest Conservation Council v. United States Forest Service, 66 F.3d 1489, 1493 (9th Cir.
 27 1995); see also United States v. City of Los Angeles, 288 F.3d 391, 397 (9th Cir. 2002).

28 In applying that test, courts must construe FRCP 24(a) “broadly in favor of potential

1 intervenors,” and in light of the “liberal policy in favor of intervention.” City of Los Angeles, 2 288 F.3d at 397. As the Ninth Circuit has explained:

3 A liberal policy in favor of intervention serves both efficient resolution of issues
 4 and broadened access to the courts. By allowing parties with a practical interest 5 in the outcome of a particular case to intervene, we often prevent or simplify 6 future litigation involving related issues; at the same time, we allow an additional interested party to express its views before the court.

7 Forest Conservation Council, 66 F.3d at 1496 n.8 (emphasis in the original) (internal citations 8 and quotation marks omitted).

9 As shown below, Equality California and the GSA Network satisfy the four-part test 10 for intervention under Rule 24(a).

11 1. Equality California and the GSA Network’s motion is timely.

12 In determining timeliness, courts weigh three factors: (1) the stage of the proceeding at 13 which an applicant seeks to intervene; (2) the prejudice to other parties; and (3) the reason for 14 and length of any delay. United States v. Alisal Water Corp., 370 F.3d 915, 921 (9th Cir.
 15 2004). In this case, Equality California and the GSA Network’s motion to intervene is being 16 filed at the very outset of the case. Equality California and the GSA Network’s intervention 17 will not delay the litigation.

18 2. Equality California and the GSA Network have significant interests 19 in the subject matter of the action.

20 Rule 24(a)’s requirement of an “interest relating to the property or transaction” is 21 construed expansively. Cascade Natural Gas Corp. v. El Paso Natural Gas Co., 386 U.S. 129, 22 132-36 (1967). The requirement “is primarily a practical guide to disposing of lawsuits by 23 involving as many apparently concerned persons as is compatible with efficiency and due 24 process.” City of Los Angeles, 288 F.3d at 398 (internal quotation marks and citation omitted).
 25 Thus, “[a]n applicant has a ‘significant protectable interest’ in an action if (1) it asserts an 26 interest that is protected under some law, and (2) there is a ‘relationship’ between its legally 27 protected interest and the plaintiff’s claims.” California ex rel. Lockyer v. United States, 450 28 F.3d 436, 441 (9th Cir. 2006) (quoting Donnelly v. Glickman, 159 F.3d 405, 409 (9th Cir.

1 1998)). “The relationship requirement is met ‘if the resolution of the plaintiff’s claims
 2 actually will affect the applicant.’” City of Los Angeles, 288 F.3d 391, 398 (quoting Donnelly 3 v. Glickman, 159 F.3d 405, 410 (9th Cir. 1998)).

4 It is also well settled under federal law that a public interest group that has sponsored 5 or actively supported legislation “is entitled as a matter of right to intervene in an action 6 challenging the legality of a measure it has supported.” Idaho Farm Bureau Fed’n v. Babbitt, 7 58 F.3d 1392 (9th Cir. 1995), 1397 (conservation groups had interest in litigation challenging 8 the listing of a snail under the Endangered Species Act, where they were active in getting the 9 snail listed); see also Idaho v. Freeman, 625 F.2d 886 (9th Cir. 1980) (the National 10 Organization for Women had the right to intervene in a suit challenging procedures for 11 ratification of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment because it had actively championed the 12 proposed amendment); Sagebrush Rebellion, Inc. v. Watt, 713 F.2d 525, 526-27 (9th Cir.
 13 1983) (the Audubon Society and other environmental groups were entitled to intervene under 14 Rule 24(a) to defend the validity of state action designating 500,000 acres of land as a 15 protected conservation area); Washington State Bldg. & Constr. Trades Council v. Spellman, 16 684 F.2d 627, 630 (9th Cir. 1982) (a public interest group that sponsored a Washington statute 17 prohibiting the introduction of radioactive waste from other states was entitled to intervention 18 as a matter of right under Rule 24(a) in an action challenging the validity of that statute), cert.
 19 denied, Don’t Waste Washington Legal Defense Found. v. Washington, 461 U.S. 913 (1983).

20 In this case, Equality California and the GSA Network have two sets of protectable 21 interests, each of which is independently sufficient under the second prong of the four-part 22 test. First, Equality California and the GSA Network have protectable interests in defending 23 the validity of the challenged statutes because Equality California was an official sponsor of 24 SB 777 and the lead organization lobbying for passage of the bill, and the GSA Network also 25 actively worked to support the bill. For example, Equality California worked with Senator 26 Kuehl to author the bill, participated in drafting bill language, testified at legislative 27 hearings, and provided assistance to legislative staff regarding technical questions related 28 to the bill. (Kors Decl. ¶ 5.) Equality California also met with legislators and the Governors

1 office, sent emails to their members urging them to contact legislators and the governor, issued 2 press releases and action alerts, secured co-authors among legislators, and held district 3 meetings with legislators and their staff. (Kors Decl. ¶¶ 2, 4 & 5.) Student members of the 4 GSA Network worked with the GSA Network to educate state Senators and Assembly 5 Members about the students' personal experiences of harassment and discrimination based on 6 sexual orientation and gender identity at school and to lobby for passage of SB 777. (Laub.
7 Decl. ¶ 8.) The GSA Network produced educational materials about SB 777, arranged for a 8 GSA student member to testify in front of the Senate Judiciary Committee, spearheaded a 9 postcards to the Governor campaign for GSA clubs, and organized a statewide campaign 10 urging GSA members to call the Governor's office in support of SB 777. Id.

11 Equality California was also an official co-sponsor of the measure that became AB
12 537, the California Student Safety and Violence Prevention Act of 2000, which banned 13 discrimination in public schools on the bases of actual and perceived sexual orientation and 14 gender (including gender identity) as defined in Penal Code 422.56. (Kors Decl. 6 .) 15 Equality California was also an official sponsor of Senate Bill 1234 in 2004, which revised the 16 definition of "gender" in Penal Code 422.56. (Kors Decl. 7.)

17 Second, Equality California and the GSA Network also have protectable interests in 18 this litigation because many of their members are the primary intended beneficiaries of the 19 challenged portions of SB 777 and the challenged portions of the hate crime statute. See, e.g., 20 California ex rel. Lockyer, 450 F.3d at 441 (group seeking intervention to defend a challenged 21 statute had a protected interest where they were "the intended beneficiaries of [the] law"). The 22 inclusion of sexual orientation and gender identity in SB 777 is designed to promote equality 23 in educational opportunities and to safeguard students and others, including many members of 24 Equality California and the GSA Network, against discrimination based on sexual orientation
25 and gender identity in public schools. Similarly, the inclusion of sexual orientation and gender 26 in the hate crime statute is designed to deter and punish hate violence against persons who are, 27 or who are perceived to be, lesbian, gay, bisexual, or transgender. Plaintiffs have brought suit 28 against Defendant officials of the State of California specifically to prevent the enforcement of 1 these protections. Accordingly, Equality California and the GSA Network's interest in this 2 action is "protected under some law," i.e., under the challenged provisions of SB 777 and the 3 hate crime statute.

4 In addition, there plainly is a relationship between Proposed Intervenor's legally 5 protected interests and the claims at issue in this lawsuit because the Plaintiffs are seeking 6 declaratory and injunctive relief to invalidate the very statutes that protect the interests of 7 Equality California's and the GSA Network's members. See City of Los Angeles, 288 F.3d at 8 398 ("The relationship requirement is met if the resolution of the plaintiff's claims actually 9 will affect the applicant.") (internal quotation marks and citation omitted); Forest 10 Conservation Council, 66 F.3d at 1494 (the requisite "relationship" between the "legally 11 protected interest" and the action exists when "the injunctive relief sought by plaintiffs will 12 have direct, immediate, and harmful effects" upon the applicants' interest). The Ninth Circuit 13 has found a significant protectable interest in prior similar cases where groups sought to align 14 themselves with government entities defending the validity of state action that protected the 15 interests of those groups. See, e.g., Sagebrush, 713 F.2d 525 (finding national wildlife 16 organization had a significant protectable interest in a suit brought by a nonprofit organization 17 against the Department of the Interior challenging the creation of a wildlife habitat area); 18 Idaho Farm Bureau Fed'n, 58 F.3d 1392 (finding a significant protected interest of 19 conservation group in case brought against Fish and Wildlife Service challenging rule listing 20 snail as endangered species).

21 3. Disposition of this action will significantly impair or impede the 22 interests of Equality California and the GSA Network.

23 The third part of the Rule 24(a) inquiry is whether "the disposition of the action may as 24 a practical matter, impair or impede [the applicant's] ability to protect [its] interest." Forest 25 Conservation Council, 66 F.3d at 1493. This analysis "is not limited to consequences of a 26 strictly legal nature." Id. at 1498 (quoting Natural Resources Defense Council, Inc. v. U.S.
 27 Nuclear Regulatory Comm'n, 578 F.2d 1341, 1345 (10th Cir. 1978). Rather, "[i]f an absentee 28 would be substantially affected in a practical sense by the determination made in an action, he

1 should, as a general rule, be entitled to intervene.” California ex rel. Lockyer, 450 F.3d at 442
 2 (quoting FRCP advisory committee note to 1966 amendment to Rule 24(a)).¹¹

3 The outcome of this lawsuit unquestionably could impair the interests of Equality 4 California and the GSA Network in preserving the challenged statutes and the substantive 5 protections those statutes provide to the organizations’ members. Were the Plaintiffs in this 6 case to prevail in obtaining declarations that the challenged statutes are invalid and an 7 injunction preventing the statutes’ enforcement, such a result would significantly impede 8 Proposed Intervenor’s goals of keeping children safe and free from discrimination at school 9 and of eradicating discrimination, harassment, and hate violence based on sexual orientation
 10 and gender identity. In addition, the members of Equality California and the GSA Network 11 would be directly injured because they would be deprived of the protections against 12 harassment, discrimination and violence that SB 777 and the hate crime statute provide. The 13 Ninth Circuit has found impairment of interests in similar situations. See, e.g., Sagebrush
 14 Rebellion, Inc. v. Watt, 713 F.2d 525 (9th Cir. 1983); Idaho Farm Bureau Fed’n v. Babbitt, 58 15 F.3d 1392 (9th Cir. 1985).

16 Intervention is also warranted under this third prong of the four-part test because if, the 17 challenged statutes were struck down, or their sweep substantially narrowed, the Proposed 18 Intervenor would have no other forum other than this litigation in which they might contest 19 that interpretation of the challenged laws.

20 Similarly, in California ex rel. Lockyer v. United States, 450 F.3d 436, 443 (9th Cir.
 21 2006) the Ninth Circuit granted intervention to health care providers who sought to defend the 22 validity of the Weldon Amendment, a federal statute that prevents federal, state, and local 23 governments from receiving certain federal funds if they restricted the ability of health care 24 providers to refuse to provide, pay for, provide coverage of, or refer for abortions. State ex 25 rel. Lockyer, 450 F.3d at 439. The Court explained: “If, as a result of this litigation, the 26

27 ¹¹ The “practical impairment” standard of Rule 24(a) resulted from a 1966 amendment 28 “designed to liberalize the right to intervene in federal actions.” Nuesse v. Camp, 385 F.2d 694, 701 (D.C. Cir. 1967).

1 Weldon Amendment is struck down, or its sweep is substantially narrowed, the Proposed 2 Intervenor will have no alternative forum in which they might contest that interpretation of 3 the Amendment.” California ex rel. Lockyer, 450 F.3d at 443. The same analysis applies 4 here.¹²

5 4. The interests of Equality California and the GSA Network may not 6 be adequately represented by the parties to the action.

7 In determining whether an applicant’s interest is adequately represented by the parties, 8 courts must consider: (1) whether the interest of a present party is such that it will undoubtedly 9 make all the intervenor’s arguments; (2) whether the present party is capable and willing to 10 make such arguments; and (3) whether the would-be intervenor would offer any necessary 11 elements to the proceedings that other parties would neglect. California v. Tahoe Regional 12 Planning Agency, 792 F.2d 775, 778 (9th Cir. 1986).¹³ The prospective intervenor has the 13 burden of demonstrating that existing parties do not adequately represent its interests.
 14 Sagebrush, 713 F.2d at 528. “However, [the Ninth Circuit] follow[s] Trbovich v. United Mine 15 Workers, 404 U.S. 528, 538 n. 10, 92 S. Ct. 630, 30 L. Ed. 2d 686 (1972), in holding that the 16 requirement of inadequate representation is satisfied if the applicant shows that representation 17 ‘may be’ inadequate.” Northwest Forest Res. Council v. Glickman, 82 F.3d 825, 838 (9th Cir.
 18 1996) (emphasis added); see also Forest Conservation Council, 66 F.3d at 1498 (“[I]t is 19 sufficient to show that representation may be inadequate.”) (emphasis in original). Moreover,

20 _____
 21 ¹² In addition, in United States v. City of Los Angeles, 288 F.3d 391 (9th Cir. 2002), the Ninth 22 Circuit granted intervention as of right to the bargaining unit for police officers in a case 23 “because the proposed consent decree in the case purported to give the district court authority 24 to override the officers’ collective bargaining agreement.” California ex rel. Lockyer, 450 25 F.3d at 443 (9th Cir. 2006) (describing City of Los Angeles, 288 F.3d at 401.) In granting intervention, the Court “noted that once the consent decree was entered, the officers would have no alternative forum to protect their rights.” California ex rel. Lockyer, 450 F.3d at 443 (describing City of Los Angeles, 288 F.3d at 401).

26 ¹³ Whether representation may be inadequate has nothing to do with the quality of the existing 27 defendants’ attorneys: “Rule 24 requires that we look to the adequacy or inadequacy of 28 representation by ‘existing parties’ not counsel.” Sagebrush Rebellion, Inc. v. Watt, 713 F.2d 525, 529 (9th Cir. 1983).

1 “the burden of making that showing should be treated as minimal.” Trbovich, 404 U.S. at 538, 2 n.10.

3 Although where, as here, the government and proposed intervenors are on the same 4 side in defending a statute a presumption of adequacy of representation arises, see Forest
5 Conservation Council, 66 F.3d at 1499, proposed intervenors can rebut that presumption 6 simply by demonstrating a “likelihood that the government will abandon or concede a 7 potentially meritorious reading of the statute.” California ex. Rel. Lockyer v. United States, 8 450 F.3d 436, 444 (9th Cir. 2006). To show that such a “likelihood” exists, a proposed 9 intervenor need not show that the State definitely or probably will concede or fail to make an 10 argument, but only that there is more than a “theoretical possibility” that it will do so. Id.

11 Here, Plaintiffs represent the purported interests of certain school board members, 12 teachers, school counselors, parents and students who seek to enjoin the State’s enforcement 13 of the sexual orientation and gender identity provisions of SB 777 and the hate crime statute.
14 The interests of the Plaintiffs, are, of course, contrary to those of many of Proposed 15 Intervenors’ members – including LGBT students and their parents, teachers, school 16 administrators and others who benefit from and support legal protections for LGBT persons 17 and who want the challenged statutes to go into effect and to be enforced.

18 The interests of the existing defendants – Governor Schwarzenegger, Attorney General 19 Brown, and State Superintendent of Public Instruction O’Connell in their official capacities 20 (collectively referred to hereinafter as “the State” or “Defendants”) – also diverge or may 21 diverge from those of the Proposed Intervenors in an important respect. The challenged 22 statutes impose potential liability on teachers, administrators, school boards, and other school 23 officials. In California, it is well settled that school districts are arms of the state. Kirchmann 24 v. Lake Elsinore Unified School Dist., 83 Cal.App.4th 1098, 1102-1112 (2000). Although 25 judgments against school districts are not paid directly by the State Controller, “[b]ecause 26 school district funds are considered funds of the state, payment of a judgment from such funds 27 [has] ‘essentially the same practical consequences as a judgment against the State itself.’” 28

1 Kirchmann, 83 Cal.App.4th at 1112 (internal citations omitted).¹⁴ Accordingly, the State has 2 an interest in minimizing the liability of public school districts in order to protect the public 3 fisc.

4 Thus, while the State shares Proposed Intervenor's interest in eradicating 5 discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity, the State also has a competing 6 interest in protecting school officials from liability in order to protect the public fisc. Because 7 of this competing institutional interest, there is no assurance that the State "will undoubtedly 8 make all [of] the proposed intervenor's arguments." Tahoe Regional Planning Agency, 792 9 F.2d at 778. To the contrary, in order to discourage litigation and to limit the liability of 10 school officials, it is possible that the State may adopt a more narrow view of what the 11 challenged non-discrimination statutes require than that advanced by the Proposed 12 Intervenor. As the Ninth Circuit has recognized, "willingness to suggest a limiting 13 construction in defense of a statute is an important consideration in determining whether the

 15 ¹⁴ The California Court of Appeal has described "the state's extensive responsibility for and 16 involvement in the fiscal affairs of school districts" as follows:

17 The California Constitution obligates the state Legislature to "provide for a 18 system of common schools" (Cal. Const., art. IX, § 5.) . . . [S]chool districts 19 receive their funding primarily from the state. The Education Code provides that the 20 state Controller during each fiscal year shall transfer from the general fund of the state 21 to the state school fund a specified amount per pupil. (Ed. Code, § 14002.) The state 22 Superintendent of Public Education is required to certify to the Controller the amounts 23 estimated to be apportioned to each school during the ensuing fiscal year. (Ed. Code, § 41330.) As the California Supreme Court has recognized, "since the adoption in June 1978 of Proposition 13, limiting local taxation of real property (Cal. Const., art. XIII
 A), school districts have become more dependent on appropriations by the Legislature for a major part of their revenue." Cumero v. Public Employment Relations Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 575, 592 [262 Cal. Rptr. 46, 778 P.2d 174], fn. omitted.

24 Further, although funds received by school districts are to be paid into the 25 county treasury for the credit of the district Cal. Ed. Code, §§ 41001, 41002, numerous 26 courts have stated that "'school moneys belong to the state and the apportionment of 27 funds to a school district does not give the district a proprietary interest in the funds. . .
 28 .'" Laidlaw Waste Systems, Inc. v. Bay Cities Services, Inc. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th

 2 450 F.3d at 444 (citing Prete v. Bradbury, 438 F.3d 949, 958 (9th Cir. 2006)). This difference
 3 may be particularly significant in this case, where the Plaintiffs have argued that the statutes 4 are unconstitutionally overbroad and vague and, thus, where the scope of the challenged 5 statutes may be directly at issue.

6 Under settled law, the existence of adversity between the State and the Proposed 7 Intervenor rebuts the presumption of adequate representation.¹⁵ "When a party possesses 8 interests adverse to those of a prospective intervenor, that party cannot adequately represent 9 the intervenor's interests." United States v. Stringfellow, 783 F.2d 821, 828 (9th Cir. 1986),

14 B. In The Alternative, The Court Should, In Its Discretion, Permit Equality
 15 California And The GSA Network To Intervene Under FRCP 24(b).

16 In addition to satisfying the requirements for intervention as of right under FRCP 24(a), 17 Proposed Intervenor meets the requirements for permissive intervention under FRCP 24(b).¹⁶ 18 Rule 24(b)(1)(B) provides for a court to allow a party to intervene when the party "has a claim

19 20 ¹⁵ To be clear, in identifying this divergence of interests, the Proposed Intervenor does 21 not intend any criticism of the State Defendants. Rather, due to the nature of the challenged 22 statutes and the circumstance that school districts are arms of the state, the State has dual and, 23 at least to some extent, competing interests in this case. In contrast, the sole interest of the 24 Proposed Intervenor lies in ensuring that students, teachers, and other public school staff are 25 free from discrimination, harassment and violence based on sexual orientation and gender 26 identity. As the Ninth Circuit explained in City of Los Angeles, the presumption of adequate representation "arises when the government is acting on behalf of a constituency that it represents"; however, "[t]he situation is different when the government acts as an employer" or – as in this case – has another competing institutional interest adverse to that of the proposed intervenor. 288 F.3d at 401-402.

27 ¹⁶ Even if the Court grants intervention as of right, Equality California and the GSA 28 Network respectfully request that the Court also rule on their alternative motion for permissive intervention to preserve the issue for appeal.

1 or defense that shares with the main action a common question of law or fact.” In exercising 2 its discretion under Rule 24(b), the Court must also consider “whether the intervention will 3 unduly delay or prejudice the adjudication of the original parties’ rights.” FRCP 24(b)(3).
4 The rule also requires that the application must be “timely.” FRCP 24(b)(1).

5 If these threshold requirements are met, deciding whether to grant permissive 6 intervention “is directed to the sound discretion of the district court.” San Jose Mercury News, 7 Inc. v. U. S. Dist. Court, 187 F.3d 1096, 1100 (9th Cir. 1999). In exercising that discretion, a 8 court should consider whether the applicant’s participation would “contribute to full 9 development of the underlying factual issues in the suit and to the just and equitable 10 adjudication of the legal questions presented.” Spangler v. Pasadena City Bd. of Educ., 552 11 F.2d 1326, 1329 (9th Cir.1977); see also 6 Moore’s Federal Practice § 24.10 [2][b] (Matthew 12 Bender, 3d. ed.)

13 Rule 24(b)’s requirement of a common interest of law or fact is met in this case. The 14 common question of law that Equality California and the GSA Network seek to address is 15 whether the challenged statutory provisions are valid (i.e., whether the definitions of gender in 16 the challenged provisions violate the Due Process Clause of the Federal Constitution because 17 they are impermissibly vague, delegate policy matters to police, judges, and juries, or impinge 18 the right to free expression, and whether the challenged statutes violate Article 1, Section 1 of 19 the California Constitution).

20 Intervention by Equality California and the GSA Network will not delay or prejudice 21 the adjudication of either Plaintiffs’ or Defendants’ rights, as Equality California and the GSA 22 Network will not assert any new claims in this action. They merely seek to defend against 23 Plaintiffs’ existing claims. See LG Electronics Inc. v. Q-Lity Computer Inc., 211 F.R.D. 360, 24 366 (N.D.Cal. 2002) (“[I]ntervention would not delay or prejudice the adjudication of the 25 rights of the original parties, because these issues [that the proposed intervenor seeks to raise] 26 have already been raised by the other parties. . . . the Court must consider these issues 27 regardless of whether [the proposed intervenor] intervenes.”) Moreover, both of the 28 “applicants in intervention share the same common interest insofar as the subject matter of this

1 litigation is concerned; they joined in a single application and are represented by the same 2 attorney[s]” and speak with “one voice.” Sagebrush, 713 F.2d at 526.

3 In addition, the motion is timely, as Equality California and the GSA Network are 4 moving to intervene at the outset of the litigation. Thus, their intervention will not cause any 5 delay.

6 In addition to the fact that Equality California and the GSA Network satisfy the 7 threshold requirements for permissive intervention under Rule 24(b), discretion strongly 8 favors allowing Equality California and the GSA Network to intervene because these 9 organizations will significantly “contribute to full development of the underlying factual 10 issues in the suit and to the just and equitable adjudication of the legal questions presented.”
11 Spangler, 552 F.2d at 1329. Equality California and the GSA Network are intimately familiar 12 with the nature, scope, and impact of discrimination against LGBT people in school settings, 13 with how existing law has been applied, and with the development of non-discrimination laws
14 and hate crime laws in California and across the country. (Kors Decl. 13; Laub Decl. 16.)
15 Equality California and the GSA Network’s expertise, as well as the personal experiences of 16 their members, will aid in the full development of the record with respect to how the sexual 17 orientation and gender identity provisions of the hate crime statute and non-discrimination 18 statutes have been implemented and enforced in the past, in school settings as well as in other 19 arenas, such as in employment, housing, and public accommodations. Such expertise will aid 20 in the just and equitable adjudication of Plaintiffs’ legal claims in this action.¹⁷

21 Further, Equality California and the GSA Network offer a necessary perspective that 22 the present parties are currently missing: the perspective of those students, parents, teachers, 23 and others who would bear the brunt of invalidation of the challenged provisions of SB 777
24 and of the challenged provisions of the hate crime statute. Although the State Defendants

25 ¹⁷ Given the participation of the National Center for Lesbian Rights, Lambda Legal 26 Defense and Education Fund, Inc., and the Transgender Law Center as co-counsel for the 27 Proposed Intervenors, the joint submissions of Equality California and GSA Network in this 28 action will be informed by leading legal organizations’ expertise in California and Federal laws regarding discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender (including gender identity).

1 have responsibility for enforcing and/or defending state laws including SB 777, and have an 2 interest in school safety in general, SB 777 and related nondiscrimination statutes that protect 3 the same classifications that exist in the hate crime statute were specifically designed to 4 protect students, such as many of the members of Equality California and GSA Network, from 5 discrimination, and to improve their ability to learn. Since the passage of AB 537 in 2000, 6 Equality California and GSA Network members have been legally protected from 7 discrimination in schools based on their sexual orientation and gender identity. It is critical for 8 the Court to hear the voices of students who support these protections and who would be 9 subject to discrimination if protections against discrimination based on sexual orientation and 10 gender were held unconstitutional, as well as the voices of parents whose children would be 11 subjected to such discrimination. In addition, the adult members of the GSA Network are in a 12 unique position to share with the Court their perspective as teachers, administrators, and 13 counselors who have the responsibility to implement and enforce laws in public schools and 14 have been applying and enforcing AB 537 and California's definition of gender in Section 15 422.56 of the Penal Code since 2001. See, e.g., Sagebrush, 713 F.2d at 528 ("In addition to 16 having expertise apart from that of the Secretary, the intervenor offers a perspective which 17 differs materially from that of the present parties to this litigation."). As in Sagebrush, the 18 Equality California and GSA Network membership can offer a unique perspective that "differs 19 materially from that of the present parties to this litigation." Id. at 528.

20 Both Equality California and the GSA Network have participated in other lawsuits that 21 either challenged or sought to uphold California laws that directly impact LGBT people. (Kors 22 Decl. 19 ;Laub Decl. 19.) Equality California was granted leave to intervene in three of the 23 six consolidated lawsuits challenging California's statutory ban on marriage between same sex 24 couples, Tyler v. State of California, California Appellate Court Case No. A110450, 25 Proposition 22 Legal Defense and Education Fund v. City and County of San Francisco, 26 California Appellate Court Case No. A110651, and Campaign for California Families v.
 27 Newsom, California Appellate Court Case No. A110652, which have now been consolidated 28 as In Re Marriage Cases, California Supreme Court Case No. S147999. (Kors Decl. ¶ 19.) In

1 addition, Equality California is a party Woo v. Lockyer, Appellate Court Case No. A110451, 2 which is another one of the consolidated cases that constitute In Re Marriage Cases before the 3 California Supreme Court. (Id.) Equality California was also granted leave to intervene in 4 Knight v. Schwarzenegger and Campaign for California Families v. Schwarzenegger, 5 Sacramento Superior Court Case Nos. AS05284 and AS07035, in which State Senator Pete
6 Knight and others unsuccessfully challenged the validity of California's domestic partnership 7 statute. See Knight v. Superior Court, 128 Cal.App.4th 14, 26 Cal.Rptr.3d 687 (Cal.App. 3rd 8 Dist., 2005). (Id.) Equality California likewise was granted leave to intervene in Strong v.
9 State Board of Equalization, Court of Appeals Case No. C052818, in which Equality 10 California sought to uphold legislation that protected a surviving domestic partner from 11 property tax reassessment when his or her partner dies. (Id.)

12 GSA Network was a plaintiff in Ngoun v. Wolf, U.S. District Court for the Central 13 District of California Case No. SACV-05-868, and Paramo v. Kern Union High School 14 District, Kern County Superior Court Case No. S-1500-CV-255519, both of which sought to 15 enforce California's prohibition against discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation in 16 schools under Education Code sections 200, 201, and 220 – three of the same statutes
17 challenged in this lawsuit (albeit before their amendment by SB 777). (Laub Decl. 19.) GSA 18 Network was also a plaintiff in Ramirez v. Los Angeles Unified School District, U.S. District 19 Court Central District of California Case No. CV04-8923, and Gay-Straight Alliance Network
20 v. Visalia Unified School District, U.S. District Eastern District of California Case. No. F-00-21 6616, both of which sought to enjoin harassment against gay and lesbian public school
22 students. (Laub Decl. 19.)

23 The nature and extent of Equality California and the GSA Network's interests in the 24 case also weigh heavily in favor of intervention, as the challenged provisions of the hate crime
25 statute and SB 777 are meant to protect many members of Equality California and the GSA 26 Network, and therefore it is their interest and their members' interests that are most at stake in 27 this case. While the State also has an interest in defending its non-discrimination laws and 28

1 hate crime laws, LGBT people are personally affected by these laws and have an interest in 2 ensuring that the laws provide the fullest degree of protection.

3 Finally, judicial economy will be served by granting this motion for intervention.
4 Equality California and the GSA Network represent LGBT Californians, and their members 5 have the strongest interests in the outcome of this case. Accordingly, their intervention greatly 6 minimizes the possibility of intervention by additional persons or groups whose rights might 7 be affected by Plaintiffs' challenge to the sexual orientation and gender identity provisions of 8 California's hate crimes statute and of SB 777.

1 IV CONCLUSION

2 Equality California and the GSA Network and their members have direct interests in 3 the statutory provisions challenged in this case and will be directly affected by the Court's 4 ruling. For the reasons set forth above, Equality California and the GSA Network respectfully 5 request that the Court grant their motion to intervene as party defendants, both as a matter of 6 right and in the Court's discretion.
